SECRETARY OF NAVY ORDERS WHOLE ATLANTIC FLEET BEFORE TAMPICO

There Will be no More Temporizing With Huerta, it is Announced in Administration Circles.

DEMONSTRATION IS PROPOSED

Mexican Dictator Must Salute Flag For Indignities Heaped on U. S. by Arrest of Marines.

JOHN LIND IS RESPONSIBLE

War Ships Will Lift Anchor Tonight and Will Soon be Under Steam— Trip Takes 8 Days.

(By United Press.)

Washington, April 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels this afternoon directed Admiral Badger, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, to proceed at once with all ships under his command to Tampico, Admiral Badger is now at Hampton Roads.

At the same time the transport Hancock was directed to sail from New Orleans for Tampico with 800 marines. The battleship South Carolina, which is standing north from San Domingo, has been intercepted and ordered to Tampico. The cruiser Nashville at San Domingo is ordered to Tampico, as is also the Tacoma, which is now at Boston. The entire Atlantic torpedo fleet now at Pensacola was ordered to stand for orders preparatory to being sent to Tampico.

No explanation of the order of the Atlantic fleet was forthcoming. Secretary Daniels, in issuing the statement telling of the movement, said:

"I am making public a most important fact. It is self explanatory and I must not be interrogated about it. The statement will speak for itself."

Only one interpretation was placed on the action by administration officials, who were fully cognizant of what was going on behind the screens. This was that Huerta must salute the American flag as reparation for the indignity in the arrest of the American marines last week.

Administration officials openly declared that temporizing so far as Huerta is concerned is at an end. Huerta is to be given a demonstration of force. Whether in the face of overwhelming armament which will confront him within the next few days, he will assume a conciliatory attitude, no one here is prepared to say.

It developed this afternoon that John Lind assured President Wilson and Secretary Bryan that there could not be any further temporizing. It was his counsel fresh from the scene that resulted in sending the entire Atlantic fleet south.

The battleships Vermont, Arkansas, New Jersey, New Hampshire and the Delaware are at Hampton Roads. The destroyers Denham, Wright, Cummings, Cassin and Parker are also at Hampton Roads.

The battleships Kansas, Michigan, Illinois and Missouri are at Philadelphia.

The battleships North Dakota, Washington, Ohio, Wyoming, and Louisiana are at New York.

All of these battleships and destroyers, which comprise the entire Atlantic fleet under the command of Rear Admiral Badger will get under way as rapidly as possible and will steam under full speed for Tampico.

All of the war ships in the Atlantic fleet have been coaled and ready to move for a considerable time. They will set forth on their mission in a few hours.

Rear Admiral Mayo and Fletcher are now at Vera Cruz and Tampico. When Rear Admiral Badger arrives, it is believed Rear Admiral Fletcher will be in charge.

Rear Admiral Howard is in charge of the Pacific fleet.

The battleships at Philadelphia and Hampton Roads will be ready to raise anchor tonight or early tomorrow morning. Secretary of State Bryan had just concluded presenting the Chinese ambassador to President Wilson when he was told of the statement issued by the navy department and was asked for an explanation.

He said: "I can not tell you any thing more at this particular time. Naturally you can guess the reason for our action."

"Mr. Secretary," he was asked, "can you tell us whether you have communicated this action to Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City?"

"I have told you that I will not discuss this action at all," replied Bryan.

"Will you tell us whether you have told O'Shaughnessy to get his passports?" he was asked again.

"I will not discuss this in any way," said Bryan, with a show heat, and he turned on his heel and left.

It was said at the navy department that the trip from Philadelphia and Hampton Roads would require eight days traveling at the utmost.

SEVEN DIE IN AN APARTMENT FIRE

Eighth Person is Missing as Result of Fierce Blaze in Fashionable Hotel Melvin Today.

MANY LEAP TO THEIR DEATH

(By United Press.)

Boston, April 14.—Seven persons met death and another is missing as a result of a fierce fire that raged through the fashionable hotel Melvin in Allston early today and trapped the occupants almost in their beds. The flames surged through 30 kitchenette apartments and drove many to small balconies where fear forced them to leap to death or injury below.

The dead are:

Mrs. E. G. Bemis, Mrs. F. C. Beaharrell, her sister, J. R. Power, Mrs. Power, her two-year-old son, Mrs. Alice Shackford, an unidentified woman.

The missing:

Irene Hazel.

This most spectacular of Boston's apartment horrors came so suddenly that no one could save his possessions. In the midst of the general horror, the agony of helplessness, gripped the crowd when a rope of sheets was thrown out of the fourth story. A woman's form was seen to descend hand over hand. Thus Mrs. Robert Adams reached the ground safely, but fell unconscious.

CAIN WILLIAMS A CANDIDATE.

John O. Williams, better known as Cain Williams, a well known resident of Noble township and New Salem, announced himself today as a candidate for the nomination of county treasurer subject to the decision of the Republican nominating convention. Mr. Williams is a successful farmer and business man and has been an active Republican, having served one term of township trustee.

ALL ORDERED TO BE VACCINATED

City Health Board Sounds Warning After Finding Boy Ill With Smallpox on Streets.

MANY PEOPLE ARE EXPOSED

Board States There is no Great Danger, But That Best Method is to Guard Against it.

Everyone get vaccinated. This is the warning of the city board of health. The health board does not wish to frighten the people but as a matter of precaution and protection the physicians advise that everyone get vaccinated and that without delay.

Chester Taylor, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Taylor, living along the Pennsylvania railway, just north of Eighth street, was found on the streets of the city this morning suffering from smallpox. He was badly broken out and, according to the physicians, it is hard to tell the number of people that have been exposed. Because of the large number that have been exposed the health board urges the vaccination order be obeyed.

The boy was taken ill last Friday and for a time thought he had the grippe. Sunday morning he broke out, but continued to keep going and never consulted a physician. This morning he decided to find out what the breaking out was and it was then learned that he had the smallpox. He is broken out freely.

The Taylor boy had been over the city and everyone who came in contact with him has been exposed to the disease as the physicians say he is a very fit subject to pass the disease along.

The health board does not intend to create a panic of fear and states that there is no great danger, but as a matter of protection it is best to be vaccinated. Taylor told Dr. Wooden all the places he had been and of the business houses he had entered. In this manner it was easy to tell who had been exposed and the clerks were ordered vaccinated.

Taylor was in the Princess theater, according to his statement, about ten o'clock last night. As it is impossible to tell how many were exposed there, the health board advises that all who were in the theater at that time take warning. The fact that Taylor was in this theater is in no way detrimental to the place as it has been thoroughly disinfected. It would not be necessary to name the theater only from the fact that it would be impossible to tell the people that they were exposed. For this reason the health board desired that it be made public.

The stores and the theater have been disinfected and there is no danger now. Taylor was sent to his home and the house quarantined. He had been visiting in Anderson and Hamilton and it is supposed that he contracted the disease while at one or the other of the two cities.

Dr. E. I. Wooden, secretary of the city health board, said: "The Princess theater has been thoroughly disinfected and there will be no danger from attending it."

BURNS MAY BE FATAL.

Henry Hall, the aged man who was burned last week when his trousers caught fire from standing too close to the stove at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Myers, north of the city, was worse today and little hope for his recovery was maintained. He is 85 years old and at the time it was thought that the burns might prove fatal.

SCHOOLS ARE TO CELEBRATE DAY

Special Topics Assigned For Arbor Day Programs to be Used by School Children Friday.

SOME TREES TO BE PLANTED

Entrants in Civic Improvement Association Contest Will Qualify Then—Other Observance.

Arbor Day, which will be celebrated in Indiana Friday, will be widely observed in the schools of Rushville. Preparations have been under way for some time to make the celebration this year a historic one for the school children.

Topics pertaining to Arbor Day and its various phases have been assigned and the various rooms and buildings are selecting that which they desire for the special observance. In some instances only one of the topics will be used and expanded on and in other cases the whole set of topics will be touched on in the program.

The observance will not be devoted to Friday alone, but will be carried on in study periods during the remainder of the school year. In fact, this week already some themes on Arbor Day have been discussed in preparation for the day.

The topics which have been assigned for the use of the schools are: "Arbor Day Proclamation"; Trees, Why Plant, Use, Beauty"; "Birds, Use, Protection, Kinds, Bird Houses"; "Conservation and the State Board of Forestry"; "Care of School Grounds and Home Lawns"; "City Beautiful and Work of Rush County Chamber of Commerce and Social Service Association"; "Songs and Recitations."

Each room in all of the buildings will either have a special program or will join with other rooms in carrying out an Arbor Day program. All the pupils of Jackson school will combine and will hold their exercises in the main hall of the building. At Graham school rooms will hold their exercises separately, with the exception of Miss Applegate's and Miss Caldwell's room which will join in a program. No definite arrangements have been made at Havens school.

It is the intention of the officers of the Rushville Civic Improvement and Social Service association that the children who have purchased trees, shrubs and flowers for the annual contest plant the trees arbor day. That was one of the stipulations of the contest.

The trees have been shipped and are expected to arrive here tomorrow, it was stated by an official of the association this morning. It is a part of the plan that the trees shall be delivered Arbor Day. The children will plant the trees at their respective homes. This is expected to add interest to the day.

The day is to be celebrated on a far larger scale throughout Indiana, according to reports from the State Board of Forestry at Indianapolis. About the most conspicuous in the list of cities is Frankfort, where the whole population will join with the school children in an elaborate program and many trees will be planted. The speaker at Frankfort will be Charles W. Fairbanks, president of the state association and leader of the conservation movement in Indiana.

At Lafayette the Chamber of Commerce is directing the Arbor Day plans, the celebration to be the largest of the kind ever held there. Two hundred trees will be planted on

SOLICITOR IS MADE THE "GOAT"

J. W. Morris, Who Was Selling Subscriptions to Magazines, Hauled up Into Police Court Today.

WAS THOUGHT TO BE A FAKIR

Develops Since Publishing Story About Fraud Coming Here That He Visited Rushville.

J. W. Morris, a magazine solicitor, was taken up before Prosecutor Smith this morning by the police as it was thought he might be the fakir, who "worked" Connersville last week. The man gave the authorities a good account of himself and as far as the police could learn he was on the "square."

Because of the story last night regarding a fake solicitor that had been in Connersville and who was on his way to this city. Mr. Morris did very little business. In fact he had not taken a single order in the time he had worked until taken in by the police.

The man taken this morning was very angry because he was taken for a fakir. He was set free, and stated that he was going to Connersville and show the people there that he was not a bunco man.

Since the publication last night of the story that a fake magazine solicitor had been working in Connersville and was believed to have left there and come here it has developed there has been a man with a similar proposition in Rushville the last few days. There seems to be no doubt but that he is the same individual.

So far as could be learned today, he did not find any victims here. He made different propositions to different women. To one he offered the three magazines for three months for forty cents, alleging the money was necessary in advance to pay postage. To others he offered the three well-known magazines for twenty-five cents for nine months. It is presumed that he has left the city by this time if he knows people are aware of his game.

NOW TIME TO PAY DOG TAX

List Will be Turned Over to Prosecutor May 1.

The time for paying dog tax has arrived. The annual warning has been issued by township trustee J. V. Young. This comes every spring and is necessary because the owners of dogs neglect to pay the tax. So far the trustee has collected just one dollar. The tax is payable to the township assessor or to the trustee. The tax must be paid by May 1. After May 1 the tax is delinquent and anyone owning a dog on which the tax has not been paid is subject to a fine. Following the usual custom the names of the delinquents will be turned over to the prosecutor after May 1.

DAMAGE SUIT STARTS.

The damage suit of A. E. Lisher, an attorney of Shelbyville, against the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company started yesterday in the Shelby circuit court. The plaintiff demands $500 for the alleged destruction of his automobile when it was struck by an I. & C. car.

—Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Siler and Mrs. John Kirkpatrick spent the day in Indianapolis, the guest of friends.

WILL M. SPARKS IS A CANDIDATE

Former Judge of Rush-Shelby Circuit Court Will Seek Republican Nomination For Judge Here.

MENTIONED FOR THE PLACE

Jurist Who Made Wonderful Record on the Bench Has no Opposition For the Nomination.

Will M. Sparks will be a candidate for the nomination for judge of the Rush circuit court on the Republican ticket.

This came from authoritative sources that the former judge of the circuit court would go before the Republican county convention, which will be held Saturday, April 25.

It has been mentioned frequently that Mr. Sparks would be a candidate for the Republican nomination, but it was never certain until today that he would be in the race.

Republicans generally were greatly elated that Judge Sparks had decided to become a candidate. They feel that he will add much prestige to the county ticket in the event of his nomination, and from present indications he will not be opposed since no other local Republican attorney has been mentioned for the place.

Judge Sparks was elected judge of the court in the circuit composed of Rush and Shelby counties in 1904. He won in spite of a big Democratic majority in Shelby county that far overshadow the meager Republican majority in this county.

Judge Sparks made a wonderful record on the bench. He was the Republican candidate again in 1910 and Judge Blair of Shelbyville was his opponent. Judge Blair pulled the Democratic majority in Shelby county to his side and won by the narrowest margin. His majority was only nineteen votes. Before the official count, it looked that his majority, if there was any, would be even smaller than that.

Last year Rush and Shelby counties were made individual court circuits and Judge Megee was appointed judge of the court here.

An insanity inquest was held this afternoon on Marlin Palmer, west of the city. Squire Kratzer was the official presiding at the trial.

"I See by the Paper Where:"

Not the English of Lindley Murray perhaps, but nevertheless a very excessive phrase which we hear every day.

There is food for thought in it for everyone who has an appeal to make to the great purchasing public.

Why not make that "WHERE" apply to your goods or your store?

There is no appeal so direct nor one which brings such immediate results as that made through the columns of a live daily newspaper like The Daily Republican.

The newspaper is the intimate friend of the family. People turn to it for guidance, and naturally they look to it for advice when they have shopping to do.

There Are Undesirable Animal and Vegetable as Well as Human Immigrants

(Special to the Daily Republican) Washington, April 15.—The recent seizure by the New York customs authorities of the village of Meadow ants which Mrs. O. W. Morse wished to bring with her from Europe is only an episode in the perpetual war waged against undesirable immigrants, human, animal and vegetable.

Mrs. Morse's village, like the one which reached Philadelphia about a fortnight before, was probably a by-product of the increased interesting nature study but the United States Government not only discourages such aids to amateur research but absolutely prohibits them. By a law passed in 1905 the importation of living insects into this country is forbidden and there are other laws which regulate so strictly the importation of larger animals that in many cases no discretion is left to the authorities.

Nevertheless tourists and amateur scientists are continually endeavoring to introduce additions to the flora and fauna of the United States which the United States is happy to be without. It is estimated that fully one half of the pests that afflict farmers and stock have been imported from abroad, many of course by accident in the course of commercial shipments but some brought in deliberately by misguided enthusiasts or thoughtless travelers.

The classic instance of misguided enthusiasm is the introduction in 1869 of the destructive gipsy moth by a scientist named Trouvelot. Trouvelot, a Frenchman by birth, an Astronomer in Harvard; unfortunately he was also an ardent entomologist who had devoted much of his leisure time to the consideration of the silk worm industry. In an evil hour he conceived the idea of breeding a hardier worm which might withstand the diseases which were then ravaging rearing establishments in France, and in pursuit of this purpose imported some gipsy moths, intending to cross them with some of the native species found in the U. S. It so chanced, however, that he left the window of his study in Medford, Mass. open one day. When he returned a mass of eggs laid by the gipsy visitors had disappeared—apparently it had blown out of the open window. At this point Trouvelot's experiments stopped. Their results did not. They are still with us and have cost the country millions of dollars. For twenty years the gipsy moth attracted no attention. The people of Medford may have wondered at the destruction of their trees, but the damage remained local and the outside world knew nothing about it. In 1889, however, the pest suddenly became prominent. Since that time a bitter warfare has been waged against it, but the victory is not yet won.

Strangely enough, the automobile has proved an ally of the moth. Not only does it stir up currents of air which scatter the fallen and infected foliage but it actually carries insects many miles into districts which have hitherto been immune. And on one occasion some years ago there is every reason to believe that a deliberate attempt was made to spread the pest. Eggs said to have been found in California were sent to the Department of Agriculture for examination and for a time it seemed certain that in some unaccountable way the pest had traveled across the entire con-continent. Investigation revealed the fact, however, that the man who forwarded the eggs had previously been employed in fighting the moth in Massachusetts. Upon the arrival of scientist attached to the Department, he left his home and remained without address until the investigator had departed. There was no further report of the gipsy moth in California.

In this case the probable motive was a visionary scheme to profit in some way from a Government appropriation to stamp out the pestilence. But ignorance can do as much harm as malice. Travelers with the most innocent intentions in the world delight in bringing back with them souvenirs of their travels and few have any conception of the ease with which disease is spread among plants and animals. Because of its traffic with China, Japan and the South Sea, San Francisco in particular is a favorite port of entry for strange and obnoxious insects—or would be if the various exotic seeds, fruits and plants which have attracted their attention in the Orient and the Tropics were not ruthlessly taken from the incoming tourists. In one instance, for example, some strange looking beans were found to be swarming with weevil. The individual from whom this precious prize was taken may have resented the Government's action as a piece of petty interference with a personal hobby, but the Government saw in the beans not a hobby but a very vital danger to the vegetable gardens of the country.

MAWSON WEDS GIRL WOODED BY WIRELESS

Antarctic Explorer Has Had Many Thrilling Experiences.

Melbourne.—Dr. Douglas Mawson, the antarctic explorer, who has just returned from a trip during which his two companions lost their lives and made his way back to the base after thirty days of suffering in blizzards, was married to Miss Delprat, daughter of a mine owner.

The couple became engaged in 1911, when Miss Delprat was nineteen years of age and before Dr. Mawson started on the last expedition. They exchanged love messages by wireless while the doctor was in the antarctic.

The south pole was not Dr. Mawson's goal. He aimed at the exploration of the vast coast line of the antarctic which was discovered by the American, Captain Wilkes, seventy years ago and named after him. The party returned to Adelaide, Australia, on Feb. 27 of this year. The scientific results of the expedition are said to be very valuable. Besides the mapping out of newly discovered lands, extraordinary marine fauna were discovered at a depth of two miles and copper deposits and a vast coal bed were also found.

Dr. Mawson was born at Bradford, England, in 1882. He holds the position of lecturer in geology in the University of Adelaide.

PREACHES FOR HER HUSBAND.

Pastor's Wife Takes His Place In Cleveland Pulpit.

Cleveland, O.—Three times in her life Mrs. L. C. Hallock, wife of the pastor of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church, has been called upon to perform the duties of a clergyman. Twice in her husband's absence and once in the absence of her son, Rev. Rolin Hallock of Science Hill, O., has she been equal to the emergency and taken their places in the pulpit.

When Mrs. Hallock's husband was called to Youngstown she agreed to preach his Sunday sermon at Asbury church. She went into the pulpit and preached what members of the congregation said was one of the most interesting sermons they had heard in a long time.

PRAISE FOR FLEET'S WORK.

Landing Operations at Culebra Pronounced Astonishing.

Washington.—The officers and men who participated in the Atlantic fleet's recent landing operations against the advanced base forces at Culebra, near Porto Rico, are highly praised in a report by Captain W. S. Sims, who was detailed as fleet observer. Captain Sims says:

"An examination of the installations made on shore and of the astonishing amount of work required to create the defenses in the rocky soil (with, incidentally, inefficient tools for such work), makes it apparent that such results could have been accomplished only by a harmonious combination of thorough planning and admirable administration, actuated by the driving force of an enthusiastic devotion to duty extending throughout the entire command."

"It is a most gratifying example of the great military value of a high degree of esprit de corps and cheerful devotion to duty in overcoming discouraging obstacles and difficulties."

Spears a Wolf.

Marinette, Wis.—Alex Johnson, fisherman, Liberty Grove, Door county, brought in for bounty a wolf which he killed by spearing. Off Rowleys bay he saw the animal about on a cake of ice. He broke up the ice by ramming it with his boat and then speared the wolf in the head with a pike pole. The bounty is $20.

ASSEMBLE MIDGET DINOSAUR.

Only Six Feet Long and Has Three Horns—Found In Montana.

Washington.—There are now being assembled in the National museum the bones of a very small three horned dinosaur, which is being made the type of a new species. When assembled it will be only about six feet long and three feet high, less than one-quarter the size of the largest members of this family. The head is twenty-two inches long. In the museum are several skulls of one of the large horned dinosaurs, Triceratops, which measure six to eight feet and in one case nine feet.

The group to which the new member belongs is called the Ceratopsia, from the horns which adorn their heads—two above the eyes and one on the end of the nose.

Its jaws are like those of a turtle, there being no front teeth, but a sharp curved beak. Farther back in the jaws are cutting teeth, which show the animal to have been herbivorous.

This specimen was found with the foot and tail articulated, being the first complete and connected specimen ever obtained. The foot has four toes—the first with two bones, the second with three, the fourth with five, while only a trace of the fifth toe remains, tending to show the loss of that member through disuse, as is the case with the horse.

Decorating Lawns
It was only this week the Newcastle newspapers announced the Henry county council had appropriated $150 to beautify the court house lawn with flower beds and inexpensive shrubbery. This is an improvement that has long been desired here to take away the barrenness of the court house lawn, but no county council could be persuaded that it was worth the money. The Henry county court house already has flower beds and other decorative features, but the council is willing to spend more money on it. Meanwhile the court house lawn here is as void of anything suggestive of beauty as the Sarah desert. Once upon a time an appropriation of $200 was inserted for the council to act on, but one member caused it to die a natural death. Here are more opportunities for the Chamber of Commerce.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

(Richmond Item)
The Richmond Commercial Club through its committee on advertising is again to take up the fight against mail order houses in an effort to cut to the minimum the golden harvest foreign concerns every year reap off this community.

Every Commercial club or Chamber of Commerce at some time in its career has taken a whirl at this problem. Some of them have succeeded even beyond their expectations, while others, the vast majority, in fact, have failed—fired their heavy artillery into empty air.

There is JUST ONE right way and a lot of wrong ways to do everything. The mail order house question is no exception to the rule. The fact that some but few cities have eradicated this commercial evil from their individual communities is sufficient proof that there a method by which it may be accomplished.

The Richmond Commercial club could accomplish no greater work in the next two years than to so conduct its campaign that at the end of the bi-ennium it could announce to the world that the mail order houses had become convinced that this community is an unprofitable field for their operations.

How to accomplish that end is a question that should receive the earnest consideration of the committee on advertising. Whatever may have been our successes or failures along this line in the past need not be discussed now. Let the skeleton remain in the closet. This is 1914, so why not adopt 1914 methods. There should be no aimless firing, no wasting of ammunition. The campaign should be mapped out in detail, every possible contingency considered and forestalled, and then open up the artillery all along the line.

The mail order problem, it strikes us, is one of education, at least largely. The mail order house does not believe in the attitude of "watchful waiting" for trade to drift in. It goes out after it. When times are duller it advertises most. The long-headed business men of every community will find it to their advantage to do the same.

The mail order house believes in education. Through attractive and voluminous advertising it has educated the people to trade with it, forgetting civic pride and home industries. This, too, in the face of the fact that in practically every instance home prices are quite as low, quality considered, as mail order prices, to say nothing of the added advantage of having the opportunity of seeing in advance just what you are buying and knowing that you are helping the very people who in turn will help you.

The great problem in every mail order community is not in bringing about a reduction in prices, for nine cases out of ten home prices always, upon investigation and comparison, will be found more attractive than mail order prices, but of letting the public itself know this fact.

An educational advertising campaign of two years' time in Richmond or in any community where there is a trace of civic pride, will accomplish wonders and put the mail order business on the blink. It has been done elsewhere and it can be done in Richmond, Indiana.

LEGAL NOTICE.

RAISES 26,448 FISH.

One Acre Pond In Kansas Produces Record Breaking Number.

Topeka, Kan.—Three and one-half tons of fish from an acre fish pond in three years—this is the record claimed by Professor L. L. Dyche, state fish and game warden of Kansas, for one of the experimental ponds at the state fish hatchery at Pratt. And Professor Dyche says that he could do it again, he is confident, with a little care—and a water supply. Professor Dyche believes that Kansas can be made a great fish state. Hunting, he said recently, is out of the question, but he holds that there is sufficient rainfall in the state to keep and raise fish by the wholesale.

By actual count Dyche and his helpers removed 26,448 fish, weighing a total of more than 6,780 pounds, from one pond, a one acre pond, last spring. The pond was stocked in 1910 with 10,000 yearlings. Next summer any Kansas farmer who has a pond can get as many fish as are needed to stock it free from the state fish hatchery and begin raising tons of fish for himself. The fish with which Dyche stocked his pond included black bass, crappie, blue gill sunfish, common green sunfish, bull head catfish, a few hickory shad, German carp and about 300 goldfish. The goldfish are supplied as food for the others.

MOURNED AS DEAD IN WATER, RETURNS ALIVE

Flowers Scattered Over Ocean
"Grave" Were Wasted.

Patchogue, N. Y.—Friends of John Ryan were so sorry to hear of his death by drowning last July that they scattered $50 worth of roses on the water and didn't stop talking about what a fine fellow he was for almost a week.

The other day a young man stepped up to William Farrell, who owns a hotel in Patchogue, and, sticking out his hand, remarked, "Howdy, Bill."

Bill nearly had a fit, because he was one of the contributors to the flower fund for Ryan last July.

"Don't you know me, Bill? I'm Ryan," said the man.

"Sure, I know you for $10 worth of American Beauties," said Farrell. "Well, anyhow, I'm glad to see you. Why, weren't you drowned?"

News of Ryan's return spread rapidly, and soon the "old guard" were congratulating him. Then they asked about Harry Gill, who was with Ryan when they sailed away last July in a catboat to go clamming. Gill had not been heard from, and his parents mourned him as dead.

"Oh, Gill's all right," said Ryan. "He's over in Jersey working at something. I guess he didn't think his folks would be worried about him."

The wrecked catboat was found on Fire Island beach, fifteen miles from Patchogue, two days after the pair left home, and a shoe identified as Ryan's was also picked up.

"We reached Fire Island that day," said Ryan, "and got talking over what a poor place Patchogue was for a young man with red blood. 'No future in that burg,' said Gill to me. 'Let's beat it for the big league,' said I, and we beat it. I went to South Carolina and worked off and on, and Gill did the same in Jersey. I haven't seen him for months. No; I didn't come back with a bunch of dough."

NAVY MEN IN COLLEGE.

Progress of Young Officers at Columbia Pleases Daniels.

Washington.—The rapid progress of the eighteen young naval officers under instruction in Columbia university as a result of the co-operation between the Naval academy and that institution, is highly gratifying to Secretary Daniels, he says. The officers are taking a course in which the theories of thermo-dynamics, machine design, electricity and radio are adapted to their practical application in the naval service, and in which special subjects and problems encountered aboard ship are worked out.

To bring the two institutions close together the navy department furnished the university with a large number of drawings and specifications of navy machinery, and the naval students are taught the handling of this machinery to enable them to deal intelligently with contractors and manufacturers and detect faults in machinery supplied to the government.

ly to the improvement of the health of the school children, putting into practice the old precept of "a sound mind in a sound body."

Already remarkable results have been attained in this direction in the Philippine schools, following the successful "corn campaign" which improved the conditions among the children. In the Manila schools alone last year, out of 24,600 children examined, 7,619 required medical attention, and as a result the more serious forms of skin diseases and trachoma are now under control. In one province many children were afflicted with hookworm.

There are already nearly 500,000 children in the schools and it is believed that by this attention to their welfare in a comparatively short time the entire Filipino people will be greatly improved physically and mentally.

New Home of the Peoples National Bank and Peoples Loan and Trust Co. Will Be Opened Tomorrow

Tomorrow the Peoples National bank and the Peoples Loan & Trust company will be in their new home at the corner of Main and Second streets. Tomorrow the customers and friends of the two financial institutions will be welcomed from eight in the morning to four in the afternoon and from seven to nine in the evening.

A hearty invitation is extended for everyone to visit and inspect the beautiful building, get acquainted with the conveniences arranged for patrons and the public in general, and also become acquainted with the officers and employees of the bank and trust company.

The bank and trust company will move tonight from their temporary headquarters in the old Rushville National Bank building to the new building, on which, with the exception of the outside stone cleaning and some minor interior details, the final work was completed today.

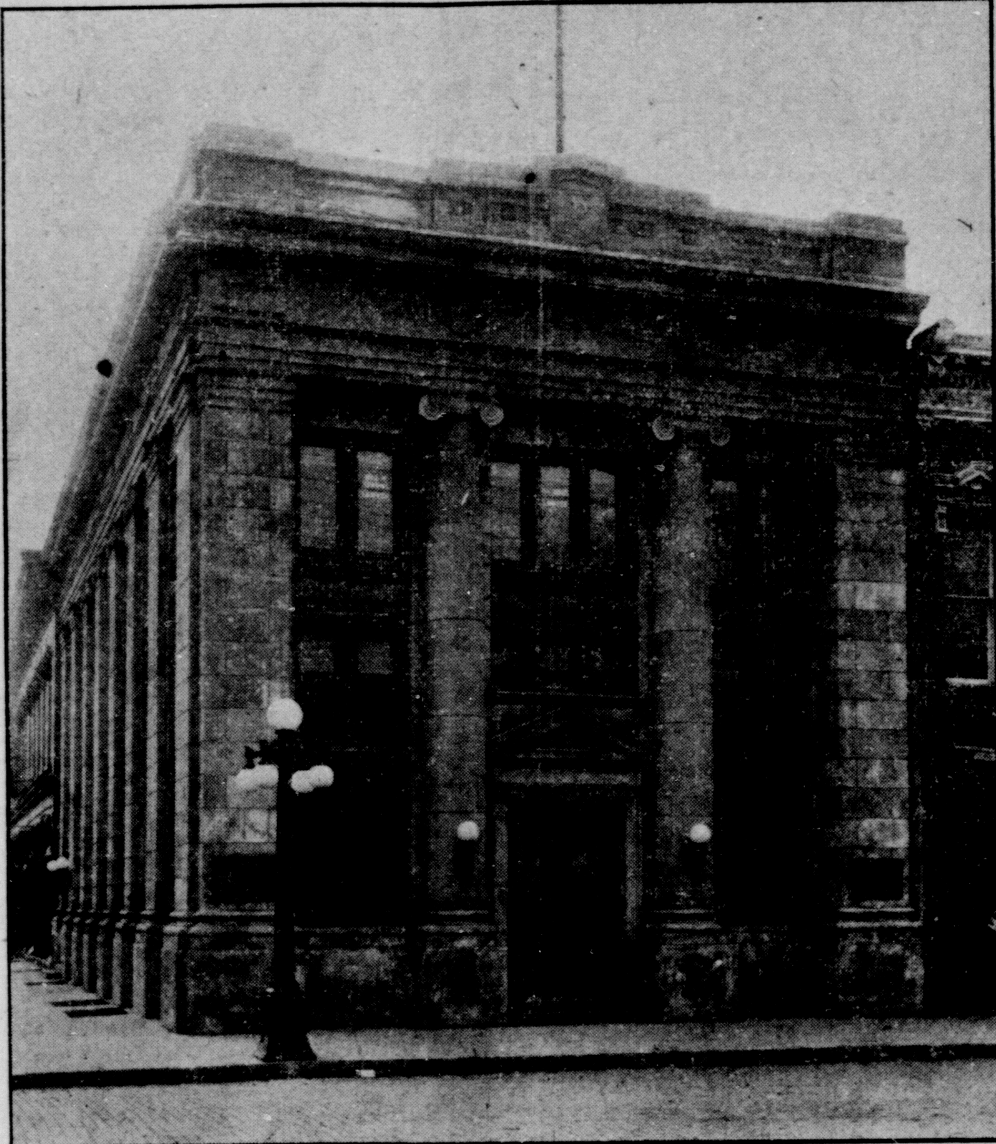

Contracts for the work were signed July 15, 1913 by the Payne Realty company, composed of Mrs. Edwin Payne, Earl H. Payne and Ralph Payne, and Latham & Walters, of Indianapolis, general contractors. The building was designed by Herbert Foltz, architect, of Indianapolis, and his superintendent of construction,

The building proper is of entirely fireproof construction throughout, the structural elements being stone, reinforced concrete, steel, hollow tile, and brick. These materials and combinations of materials were so combined and disposed throughout the building as to give beauty, individuality, stability and strength.

An ancient classic design is carried out in the Main and Second street facades, which are entirely of Bedford stone, worked into a harmonious composition of columns, pediments, panels and parapets. All exterior door and window frames and sash are covered with heavy sheet copper which becomes green with age and combined with gray of the stone and blends the whole into a beautiful elevation.

The bank and trust company will occupy the first story, basement and mezzanine floors. The second story is devoted to strictly modern office space.

The main banking room is reinforced by heavy concrete beams, which, with their columns and ornamental plaster work, divide the ceilings and walls into large panels, lending themselves readily to a splendid color scheme, bending in perfect harmony with the color and tones of the beautiful imported mar-special hood reflector, occupies a prominent place in the main lobby for the convenience of customers.

The general illumination of the main banking room is accomplished not by direct light rays, but by specially designed "direct" and "semi-indirect" fixtures containing reflectors, which cast the light up against the ceiling, which, in turn reflects and diffuses a soft, mellow light glow throughout the room, adding beauty to the general color scheme.

The light for the wickets in the screens and the counters and desks behind them is obtained by continuous hood reflectors, concealed at the backs of the cornices. These fixtures have ground glass prisms which diffuse and reduce the brilliancy of the light.

At the east end of the main lobby and on the south side of the vestibule is a private room for the use of customers. It is treated in green, cream and mahogany, with "semi-indirect" lighting and hardwood floors. A mahogany table and chairs, customers to the door frame.

The interior of the vault is divided into two compartments, one for the use of the bank and the other for the trust company. The last named compartment contains the safety deposit boxes for the use of customers. Common to both sides are specially designed filling cases, steel lockers and lockups all constructed of heavy steel and entirely fireproof.

Additional security is given the bank funds by means of a manganese steel fire and burglar-proof safe set within the huge vault and built in with steel lockers. Frosted Tungsten lamps, mirrors and tile floors, in combination with dark green enamel, bronze and polished steel grilles and gates round out a convenient and beautiful interior treatment.

The vault door and frame are of unique and massive construction and combine mechanical skill and beauty. Together they weigh approximately fourteen tons. The door is seventy inches in diameter and sixteen inches thick and swings on an enormous crane hinge fourteen inches wide and two and half inches thick. The door and frame are built of alternate disks of Bessemer steel, non-drillable, five-ply chrome steel and sections of a special composition, non-burnable plate. All fastenings and connections are made inside the door and entirely inaccessible to attack from either side. The alternate layers of steel and non-burnable rings are matched when the door is closed in the frame and the mechanical perfection of the "fit" is such that liquid can not be forced through the joint.

In the bolt casing of the door and sliding into corresponding slots in the door frame are twenty-four steel bolts, three inches in diameter, all controlled by a quadruple time lock of the latest design, which, when set, makes impossible the withdrawal of the bolts from their locked position until the time for opening the vault for the business day arrives.

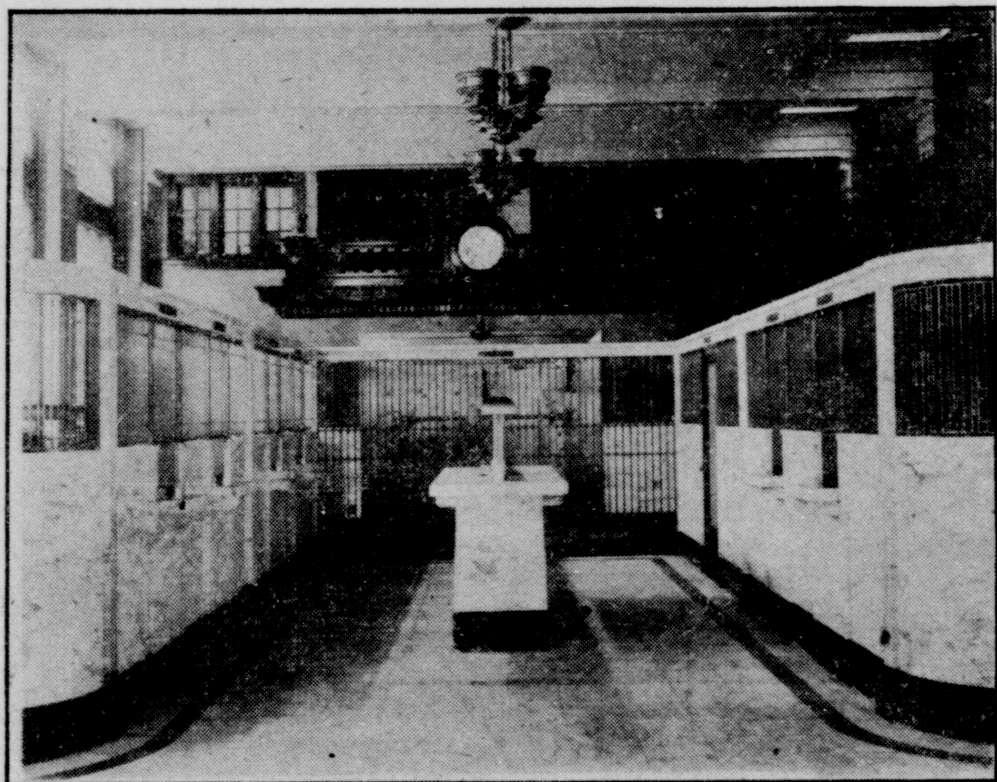

In front of the vault and extending to the north is the vault lobby, at the north end of which are the coupon and telephone booths for customers' use. Likewise there is a semi-private room to the left and rear for the use of the public. It is equipped with the modern office contelephones, electric light and hot and cold water and are reached by means of a marble stairway from an entrance in Second street.

The building is heated by a "vacuum-vapor" system of steam heating from a boiler plant in the basement. The radiators in the main banking room are concealed from view and leave the space unobstructed by being suspended from the basement ceiling. The fresh air is drawn from the outside areaways through large galvanized iron ducts, is heated by the suspended radiators and delivered to the room through bronze floor and wall registers.

Harmony prevails through the building in coloring, design and composition. Statuary bronze and polished steel are the metal finishes and these prevail on all such surfaces. Mahogany wood trim and furniture is used throughout and the wall and ceiling colorings blend well into those of the marble, wood and metal.

In all of its phases the building and its equipment reflects the spirit of progress, strength and conservatism. Rushville is to be congratulated on the successful completion of a structure that is at once a credit to the city as well as to the two institutions which will make it their business home.

tion, William C. McGuire, formerly of this city, who had charge of the construction and the installation of the equipment.

The building and its equipment embraces the most modern and up-to-date design for banking purposes and is the equal, except in size, of the banks of the largest cities. The contract price for the erection of the building was $28,450. The fixtures were put in at an approximate cost of $11,000.

The late Edwin Payne founded the Peoples bank, which opened for business November 15, 1900. This institution was succeeded by the Peoples National bank, which opened September 1, 1904. The Peoples Loan & Trust company was established in connection June 28, 1909.

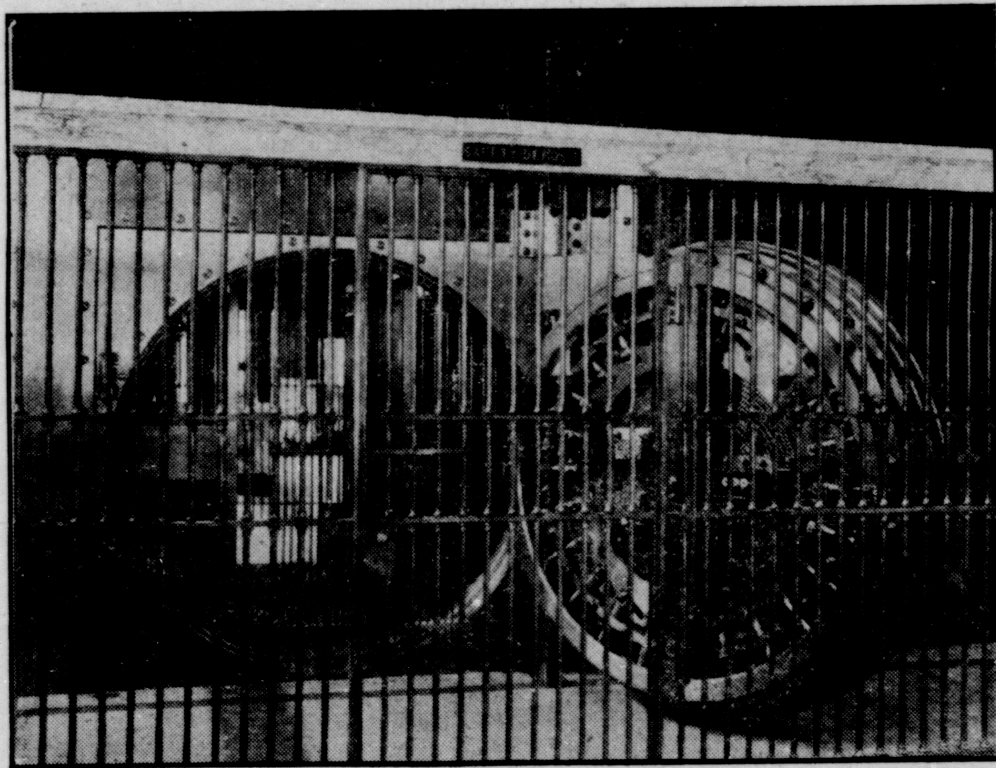

Actual work in preparation for the construction of the building, which now adorns the northwest corner of the public square, began May 1, 1913 when the razing of the old Hensel-Carr block was started to make room for the new building. Much time was consumed in the erection, but infinite care was exercised by the contractors to make the building the best possible.

A center lobby, opening from the entrance on Main street, extends the entire length of the room and is screened from the lobby in front of the vault by a heavy ornamental bronze grille and gate. The south side of the room, which is screened from the center lobby by marble and bronze partitions, will be occupied by the banking and officers' working spaces proper. The north side of the room, treated in the same manner will be used by the trust company.

The lobby floors throughout and that of the main vestibule are laid in gray Vermont marble, with a Verde Antique border following the lines of the screens, walls and partitions. The walls of the vestibule are treated in Statuary Vein marble the full ceiling height, with a base for this wainscot to match the border inlay of the marble floors. The floors of the working spaces behind the screens are laid in special interlocking cork tile which follows the same color scheme as is used in the lobby floor.

A large check desk, constructed of the same marble that is used in the fixtures and surmounted by a stationery and other suitable things are found here and are at the disposal of patrons.

In the same location, except on the north side of the vestibule, is a ladies rest room, which is in every particular as to color scheme and appointments the same as the customers' room. It is for the exclusive use of ladies and children and has adjacent adequate toilet facilities for their disposal.

Above these rooms and extending the full width of the main banking room is a mezzanine story devoted to the public's use which is equipped with tables, chairs and stationery. The public is cordially invited to make use of this for committee meetings, a few leisure moments to rest or chat or for business purposes.

At the west end of the main lobby is the massive fire and burglar-proof vault, constructed of thick, concrete walls, floor and roof and reinforced with heavy corrugated carbon steel rods in close mesh-work through the concrete. The vault has a heavy steel lining, reinforced with steel angle ribs and is securely fastened veniences.

A bronze-dial clock of marble to match the wainscoting occupies a prominent place over the vault door. This clock is self-winding, is set every hour and is controlled by the hourly Western Union Telegraph company's time signals.

At the west of the lobby and over the vault is an open mezzanine story, flanked on each side by two smaller mezzanine rooms which may be used as private rooms by the bank and trust company officials. The open mezzanine story over the vault will be used as the directors' office and is appropriately furnished for such use.

The second story office suites are now occupied. They are furnished with mahogany trim, colored cement floors, tinted walls and the "unit" or single ceiling fixture lighting system. These offices are thoroughly equipped with modern utilities, steam heat,

TELEPHONE ACHIEVEMENTS

Telephone Service of Today the Creation of The Bell Co.

In no line of human endeavor has the inventive brain of the scientist contributed more to the world's progress than by the creation of the art of telephony, of which the Bell system is the embodiment.

When the telephone was born, nothing analogous to telephone service as we now know it existed. There was no tradition to guide, no experience to follow.

The system, the apparatus, the methods—an entire new art had to be created. The art of electrical engineering did not exist. The Bell pioneers, recognizing that success depended upon the highest engineering and technical skill at once organized an experimental and research department which is now directed by a staff of over 550 engineers and scientists, including former professors, post-graduate students, scientific investigators—the graduates of over 70 universities.

From its foundation the company has continuously developed the art. New improvements in telephones, switchboards, lines, cables, have followed one another with remarkable rapidity.

While each successive type of apparatus to the superficial observer suggested similarity, each step in the evolution marked a decided improvement. These changes this evolution has not only been continuous, but is continuing. Substantially all of the plant now in use, including telephones, switchboards, cables and wires, has been constructed, renewed or reconstructed in the past 10 years.

Particularly in switchboards have the changes been so radical that installations costing in the aggregate millions have frequently been discarded after only a few years of use.

Since 1877 there have been introduced 53 types and styles of receivers and 73 types and styles of transmitters. Of the 12,000,000 telephone receivers and transmitters owned by the Bell Company January 1, 1914, none were in use prior to 1902, while the average age is less than five years.

Within 10 years we have expended for construction and reconstruction an amount more than equal to the present value of our entire plant.

Long-distance and underground transmission was the most formidable scientific problem confronting the telephone experts.

The retarding effect of the earth on the telephone current often impaired conversation through 1 mile underground as much as through 100 miles overhead. Overhead conversation had its distinct limitations.

No possible improvement in the telephone transmitter could of itself solve these difficulties.

The solution was only found in the cumulative effect of improvements, great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech.

While the limit of commercial overhead talking had increased from strictly local to over 1,000 miles as early as 1893, it was not until 1905 that conversation could be had over long-distance circuits of which as much as 20 miles was in underground cables. By 1906 underground talking distance had increased to 90 miles. By 1912 it was possible to talk underground from New York to Washington.

It was then that the construction of underground conduits from Boston to Washington was determined upon—not that it was expected to get through underground talk between those places, but in case of storm or blizzard, to utilize intermediate sections in connection with the overhead.

Our persistent study and incessant experimentation have produced results more remarkable still. We have perfected cables, apparatus and methods that have overcome obstacles heretofore regarded as insuperable both to long-distance overhead and underground conversation.

Underground conversation is now possible between Boston and Washington, four times the length of the longest European underground line. This enables the Bell system in the recent great storm, so destructive on land and sea, to maintain communication for the public between all the principal points on the Atlantic seaboard.

Telephone communication is established between New York and Denver, is potentially possible between all points in the United States, and by 1915 will be an accomplished fact between New York and San Francisco.

In our use of methods or apparatus, we are committed to no one system. We own, control or have the right to use inventions necessary to operate any system recognized or accepted as the most efficient. The Bell System must always recognize, and in its selection must always be governed by the necessities of a national service, with its complex requirements, which is infinitely more exacting than local or limited service.

These achievements represent vast expenditures of money and immense concentration of effort which have been justified by results of immeasurable benefit to the public. No local company unaided could bear the financial or scientific burden of this work. Such results are possible only through a centralized general staff, avoiding wasteful duplication of effort, working out problems common to all for the benefit of all.

The pioneer's of the Bell System recognized that telephone service as they saw it, was in the broadest sense a public utility; that upon them rested a public obligation to give the best possible service at the most reasonable rates consistent with risk, investment and the continued improvement and maintenance of its property.

Without this expenditure of millions and concentration of effort, the telephone art as it exists, could not have been developed.

What we have done in working out these great problems in the past should be accepted as a guarantee of what we will do in the future.

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

Coronation of King Swat Was Chief Business Before Country as Season Opens.

HISTORY MADE PAST WINTER

Athletic Look Good in American League and Giants Expected to Repeat in National.

(BY HALL SHERIDAN.)
(Written for United Press.)

New York, April 14.—The Coronation of King Swat was the chief business before the country today. Although an annual ceremony, the same old thrill was on hand when in eight different cities the baseball season was formally opened and the National and American league teams were sent away in the pennant races.

In the American League the World's Champion Athletics opened their first battle of the year with Frank Chance's rejuvenated Yankees in New York. The Cleveland Naps clashed with the White Sox at Chicago, the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers opened in Detroit and Clark Griffith led his Washington team against the Red Sox in Boston. The National League swung into its race with the Giants at Philadelphia, the Chicago Cubs hurling themselves upon the Reds at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at St. Louis, and Boston and Brooklyn clashing at Ebbets Field, across the Bridge.

The cracking of the baseball lid comes after one of the wildest sessions of the Winter League in history, during which a club president was unhorsed, three new managers installed in the National League, and both factions of organized baseball shaken to their foundations by the onrushing Federals, who staged their first game of the season yesterday.

Although the training season was marked by the injury of players on several teams every manager pronounced himself fit and ready for the fray today. Everything points to the same ultimate result in the pennant races as that of last year—a sweep through the American league by the Athletics, the winning of another National League pennant by McGraw, and then the climax in the struggle for the World's title between these two great machines.

The great Mackian forces present the same front as last year, with the youngsters better seasoned and therefore more to be relied upon. McGraw goes into the fray with practically his same force, but if anything, strengthened. By the acquisition of Bescher he has added speed to his outfield and in Mathewson, Marquard, Tesreau and Demaree he presents the same first line of pitching power with several youngsters in reserve. One of the teams expected to attract great attention during the National League race is the Boston Braves. After showing vast improvement last year, Boston is further strengthened for this season by Johnny Evers, deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs, and one of the greatest second basemen in the game.

It was after feverish excitement and the stirring of the entire National League that he Evers case was finally settled. This afforded one of the many upheavals that kept the Winter League fires burning fierce and hot. In connection with the same deal Hank O'Day again stepped into the managerial ranks. The firing of Evers by former President Murphy of the Cubs, was followed by the appointment of O'Day as Johnny's successor. This, in turn was followed by the ousting of Murphy from the league.

Wilbert Robinson, former coach of the Giants, has the Brooklyn assignment, and Charlie Herzog will manage the Reds.

With the Federals raiding every camp to some extent, the Phillies start the race with the most scars of the winter fight. Manager Doolin's men hung on to the Giants with every ounce of fight that was in them last year, and led the league for a time. This year, however, the Phillies are a problem. They have lost Seaton, Brennan, Knabe and Doolan to the Federals. If they set a pace such as was followed last year they will surprise even their most ardent followers. The Phillies are picked for the second division, but it's a long stretch from the showers of April to the dreary afternoons of the dog days and on through to the finish in October. Under Herzog the Cincinnati Reds are said to be vastly improved collection of baseball chargers. And with the Pirates, Cubs, Dodgers, and Cardinals talking of improvements the race for lesser honors should be tightened up even though the Giants appear to have the crown leaning in their direction.

In the American League it will be the Athletics against the gang. As the old wiz Mack gently eases his well oiled machine into the tussle, Clark Griffith in Washington and every other manager for that matter will be directing his attack on the Machian sluggers. Griffith looks as strong as the next one, outside Mack, this season, and should put up a sizzling fight Cleveland will start with a handicap due to the injury of Chapan and the Feds. After their slump of last year the Boston Red Sox are about due for recovery approaching their form of 1912, Frank Chance expects to lift the Yankees free from danger of the cellar position this year, which must mean that the St. Louis Browns are ticketed for the place.

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

And is Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blessed with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER VIII.

SHE looked at me attentively. "You know more than you are telling me, Mrs. Pitman," she said. "You—do you think Jennie Brice is dead and that Mr. Howell knows—who did it?"

"I think she is dead, and I think possibly Mr. Howell suspects who did it. He does not know, or he would have told the police."

"You do not think he was—was in love with Jennie Brice, do you?"

"I'm certain of that," I said. "He is very much in love with a foolish girl, who ought to have more faith in him than she has."

She colored a little and smiled at that, but the next moment she was sitting forward, tense and questioning again.

"If that is true, Mrs. Pitman," she said, "who was the veiled woman he met that Monday morning at daylight and took across the bridge to Pittsburgh? I believe it was Jennie Brice. If it was not, who was it?"

"I don't believe he took any woman across the bridge at that hour. Who says he did?"

"Uncle Jim saw him. He had been playing cards all night at one of the clubs and was walking home. He says he met Mr. Howell face to face and spoke to him. The woman was tall and veiled. Uncle Jim sent for him a day or two later, and he refused to explain. Then they forbade him the house. Mamma objected to him anyhow, and he only came on sufferance. He is a college man of good family, but without any money at all save what he earns. And now—"

I had had some young newspaper men with me, and I knew what they got. They were nice boys, but they made $15 a week. I'm afraid I smiled a little as I looked around the room, with its gray grass cloth walls, its toilet table spread with ivory and gold and the maid in attendance in her black dress and white apron, collar and cuffs. Even the little nightgown Lida was wearing would have taken a week's salary or more. She saw my smile.

"It was to be his chance," she said. "If he made good he was to have something better. My Uncle Jim owns the paper, and he promised me to help him. But—"

So Jim was running a newspaper! That was a curious career for Jim to choose—Jim, who was twice expelled from school and who could never write a letter without a dictionary beside him! I had a pang when I heard his name again after all the years, for I had written to Jim from Oklahoma after Mr. Pitman died asking for money to bury him and had never even had a reply.

"And you haven't seen him since?" "Once. I—didn't hear from him, and I called him up. We—we met in the park. He said everything was all right, but he couldn't tell me just then. The next day he resigned from the paper and went away. Mrs. Pitman, it's driving me crazy, for they have found a body, and they think it is hers. If it is and he was with her—"

"Don't be a foolish girl," I protested. "If he was with Jennie Brice she is still living, and if he was not with Jennie Brice—"

"If it was not Jennie Brice then I have a right to know who it was," she declared. "He was not like himself when I met him. He said such queer things—he talked about an onyx clock and said he had been made a fool of and that no matter what came out I was always to remember that he had done what he did for the best and that—that he cared for me more than for anything in this world or the next."

"That wasn't so foolish!" I couldn't help it. I leaned over and drew her nightgown up over her bare white shoulder. "You won't help anything or anybody by taking cold, my dear," I said. "Call your maid and have her put a dressing gown around you."

I left soon after. There was little I could do. But I comforted her as best I could and said good night. My heart was heavy as I went downstairs. For twist things as I might, it was clear that in some way the Howell boy was mixed up in the Brice case. Poor little troubled Lida! Poor distracted boy!

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for ten years. After two day's use of Rhuma I laid down my crutches and have since given them away. I am a well man." J. R. Crocker, 614 Sumter St., Columbia, S. C. (Advertisement.)

I had a curious experience downstairs. I had reached the foot of the staircase and was turning to go back and along the hall to the side entrance when I came face to face with Isaac, the old colored man who had driven the family carriage when I was a child and whom I had seen at intervals since I came back pottering around Alma's house. The old man was bent and feeble. He came slowly down the hall with a bunch of keys in his hand. I had seen him do the same thing many times.

"You are making a mistake; I am not 'Miss Bess!'"

He stopped when he saw me, and I shrank back from the light, but he had seen me. "Miss Bess!" he said. "Foh Gawd's sake, Miss Bess!"

"You are making a mistake, my friend," I said, quivering; "I am not 'Miss Bess!'" He came close to me and stared into my face. And from that he looked at my cloth gloves, at my coat, and he shook his white head. "I sure thought you was Miss Bess," he said and made no further effort to detain me. He led the way back to the door, where the machine waited, his head shaking with the palsy of age, muttering as he went. He opened the door with his best manner and stood aside.

"Good night, ma'am," he quavered. I had tears in my eyes. I tried to keep them back. "Good night," I said. "Good night, Ikkie."

It had slipped out, my baby name for old Isaac!

"Miss Bess!" he cried. "Oh, praise Gawd, it's Miss Bess again!"

He caught my arm and pulled me back into the hall, and there he held me, crying over me, muttering praises for my return, begging me to come back, recalling little fender things out of the past that almost killed me to hear again.

But I had made my bed and must lie in it. I forced him to swear silence about my visit; I made him promise not to reveal my identity to Lida; and I told him—heaven forgive me—that I was well and prosperous and happy.

Dear old Isaac! I would not let him come to see me, but the next day there came a basket with six bottles of wine and an old daguerreotype of my mother that had been his treasure. Nor was that basket the last.

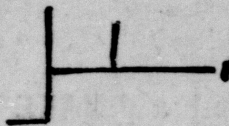

The coroner held an inquest over the headless body the next day, Tuesday. Mr. Graves telephoned me in the morning and I went to the morgue with him.

I do not like the morgue, although some of my neighbors pay it weekly visits. It is by way of excursion, like nickelodeons or watching the circus put up its tents. I have heard them threaten the children that if they misbehaved they would not be taken to the morgue that week!

I failed to identify the body. How could I? It had been a tall woman, probably five feet eight, and I thought the nails looked like those of Jennie Brice. The thumb nail of one was broken short off. I told Mr. Graves about her speaking of a broken nail, but he shrugged his shoulders and said nothing.

There was a curious scar over the heart and he was making a sketch of it. It reached from the center of the chest for about six inches across the left breast, a narrow thin line that one could hardly see. It was shaped like this:

I felt sure that Jennie Brice had had no such scar, and Mr. Graves thought as I did. Temple Hope, called to the inquest, said she had never heard of one, and Mr. Ladley himself, at the inquest, swore that his wife had had nothing of the sort. I was watching him, and I did not think he was lying. And yet the hand was very like Jennie Brice's. It was all bewildering.

Mr. Ladley's testimony at the inquest was disappointing. He was cool and collected; said he had no reason to believe that his wife was dead and less reason to think she had been drowned; she had left him in a rage, and if she found out that by hiding she was putting him in an unpleasant position she would probably hide indefinitely.

To the disappointment of everybody, the identity of the woman remained a mystery. No one with such a scar was missing. A small woman of my own age, a Mrs. Murray, whose daughter, a stenographer, had disappeared, attended the inquest. But her daughter had had no such scar and had worn her nails short because of using the typewriter. Alice Murray was the missing girl's name. Her mother sat beside me and cried most of the time.

One thing was brought out at the inquest—the body had been thrown into the river after death. There was no water in the lungs. The verdict was "death by the hands of some person or persons unknown."

Mr. Holcombe was not satisfied. In some way or other he had got permission to attend the autopsy and had brought away a tracing of the scar. All the way home in the street car he stared at the drawing, holding first one eye shut and then the other. But, like the coroner, he got nowhere. He folded the paper and put it in his notebook.

"None the less, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "that is the body of Jennie Brice. Her husband killed her, probably by strangling her. He took the body out in the boat and dropped it into the swollen river above the Ninth street bridge."

"Why do you think he strangled her?"

"There was no mark on the body and no poison was found."

"Then, if he strangled her, where did the blood come from?"

"I didn't limit myself to strangulation," he said irritably. "He may have cut her throat."

"Or brained her with my onyx clock," I added with a sigh. For I missed the clock more and more.

He went down in his pockets and brought up a key. "I'd forgotten this," he said. "It shows you were right—that the clock was there when the Ladleys took the room. I found this in the yard this morning."

It was when I got home from the inquest that I found old Isaac's basket waiting. I am not a crying woman, but I could hardly see my mother's picture for tears. Well, after all, that is not the Brice story. I am not writing the sordid tragedy of my life.

That was on Tuesday. Jennie Brice had been missing nine days. In all that time, although she was cast for the piece at the theater that week, no one there had heard from her. Her relatives had had no word. She had gone away, if she had gone, on a cold March night, in a striped black and white dress with a red collar and a red and black hat, without her fur coat, which she had worn all winter. She had gone very early in the morning or during the night. How had she gone? Mr. Ladley said he had rowed her to Federal street at half after 6 and had brought the boat back. After they had quarreled violently all night, and when she was leaving him, wouldn't he have allowed her to take herself away? Besides, the police had found no trace of her on an early train. And then at daylight, between 5 and 6, my own brother had seen a woman with Mr. Howell, a woman who might have been Jennie Brice. But if it was, why did not Mr. Howell say so?

MANY CHILDREN OUT OF SCHOOL

Department of Agriculture Believes Many are Prevented From Attending by Bad Roads.

STATISTICS TO PROVE THIS States Having Largest Percentage of Good Roads Show Largest Attendance.

[Special to the Daily Republican.] Washington, April 14.—Census reports show that in 1909 there were 24,000,000 children in the United States of school age, but that only 17,500,000 were enrolled in the public schools. This would indicate that there are several million children who are deprived, for one reason or another, from obtaining an education, and there is no doubt that a large number of those are prevented from attending school on account of bad roads. Furthermore, many schools in the country districts are closed for varying periods on account of the impassable condition of the roads, and many of the schools which are not closed have a nominal percentage of attendance

While it is true that various factors contribute to increase or decrease the attendance at schools in given sections of the country, it is worthy of comment that in the states having a small percentage of improved roads, a much larger percentage of the students enrolled, regularly attend the schools than in the states having a small percentage of improved roads. In five Eastern and Western states which have a large mileage of improved roads, the average attendance of enrolled pupils in 1908-1909 was 80 per cent; while in four Southern states and one Northwestern state which are noted for bad roads, the average attendance for the same year was 64 per cent—80 per cent in the good roads states as against 64 per cent in the bad road states. In the states first named 35 per cent of the roads have been improved, while in the latter group of states there are only 1½ per cent of the roads improved.

That improved roads would benefit our country school system, there would seem to be no doubt. Improved roads make it possible to consolidate or centralize the schools and to establish graded schools in the rural districts. Such schools centrally located will accommodate all of the children within a radius of from four to five miles. In many communities having the advantage of improved roads, commodious buildings have been provided, more competent teachers have been employed, and modern facilities for teaching have been supplied at a minimum cost. For instance, since the improvement of the main highways in Durham County, North Carolina, the number of schoolhouses have been reduced from 65 to 42, of which 17 are graded and have two or more rooms, and employ two or more teachers.

There are at the present time about 2,000 consolidated rural schools in the United States. It appears that Massachusetts, Ohio and Indiana have made the greatest progress along these lines, and it is rather significant to note that in these states about one-third of the roads have been improved. According to the statistics of the Agricultural Department, there was expended in 1899, -22,116 in Massachusetts for the conveyance of pupils to consolidated schools, but in 1908 the expenditure for this purpose amounted to $292,213. In Indiana, the expenditure for this purpose in 1904 amounted to $86,000, while in 1908, $290,000 was expended. This expenditure for transportation reflects, in a general way, the extent and progress of this new educational movement. It must not be understood that this is an additional burden, as the expenditure, thus made is saved in other directions—that is by the decrease in the number of schools and economy in their operation.

In Indiana, Massachusetts, Ohio and other states, the one-room, one-teacher schools are being replaced by central schoolhouses, with a half-dozen rooms and as many teachers. Wagons are sent out every day to gather up the children and to take them home again in the evening. All of the children within a radius of several miles are thus provided with the most modern school facilities. In some of these schools, courses in manual training, agriculture and home economics have been introduced, scientific apparatus utilized, and teachers having special qualifications and training employed.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB.

A large and appreciative audience heard the Northwestern University Glee club last night at the St. Paul M. E. church. Harold McClanahan, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. R. McClanahan of this city is the pianist for the organization, and for this reason if none other the visit of the club to this city was of special interest. The club carries a number of specialty men and the harp solos by Leo Zelanka Lerando, the readings of Lloyd W. wasser were the features. The glee club is a well balanced organization and is one of the best ever heard here.

The program is as follows. PART ONE.

(a) University Hymn—Haydn-Lutkin-Stultz.
(b) Football Song, Van Etten—Glee Club.

Vulcan's Song, from "Phelimen et Baneis", Gounod—Mr. Saurer.
Negro Melody, Shattuck—Glee Club.
Harp-Impromptu, Lerando—Mr. Lerando.

The Man in the Shadow, Anonymous—Mr. Wasser.

A Quart of Harmony—Messrs. Scott, Krumwiede, Oates, Bollman.

Future Mrs. 'Awkins, Chevalier—Glee Club.

PART TWO.

One Sweetly Solemn Thought, Ambrose-Fearis—Glee Club.
Harp Fantasia, Kovarovic—Mr. Lerando.

Andalusia, Audran-Parks—Glee Club.
Macushla, Macumurrough—Mr. Saurer.

The Cremation of Sam McGee, Service—Mr. Wasser.

Men of Harlech, Welsh Air—Glee Club.

"Spend Ten Cents and Quit Forever Rubbing Clothes!"

Goodbye caustic, goodbye lye, potash, sal soda, acid and the dozen and one clothes-eating materials which have been used for years in the washing of clothes. Goodbye all. Farewell to hard rubbing, the drudgery of body and the slavery of spirit. The wash-board is out in the ash barrel, and the old keep-a-turning washing machine has stopped its devilish work in the high cost of tearing clothes. Washee Wafers are the new wonder that makes child's play out of wash-day. The big wash that you hate to think about will be all over in 40 minutes. If you find all this hard to believe, just spend 10 cents, get a package of

WASHEE WAFERS

The Magic No-Lye Clothes Cleaner

Put one of the wafers in your boiler of clothes, go away and leave it alone, go back in half an hour and see how the "miracle" happened. You rinse your clothes and hang them up to dry. That's all. Your clothes will be snow-white—whiter and cleaner than you ever saw them before, even after the hardest and most thorough rubbing. See how the dirt came out of the collars and wristbands. That's the hardest test. You'll need no stronger proof. Washee Wafers wash any material with equal ease—woolens, cottons, silks, any cloth. They do not, can not, harm the most delicate laces or fabric. They act on a new principle—they make the water alive with millions of little bubbles that constantly explode, loosening every iota of dirt way inside, everywhere, cleaning automatically better than any wash-board or washing machine could ever do. This is why Washee Wafers positively save your clothes. Even if you never did the family washing before, you can do it all now in 40 minutes. Save the money you pay the laundress. Save your clothes from being eaten by acids and lyes.
